

DAVID IRVING

IT Project Manager

PROFILE

At my core I believe in a person-to-person connection with clients and co-workers alike. I strive to see people first and the job second. This has enabled me to create a well-rounded career that I truly enjoy and excel at. Logistics is arduous in that expectations and timelines are always changing. My ability to make measured quick decisions makes me efficient at my job. But I would argue, more important, is my ability to learn from past experiences and apply them. Working to build relationships as well as managing the expectations of deadlines and budgets is something that sets me apart.
